I would like to say I dont think the rules are fair on the bikers in australia. Not all of them are criminals and not all of them are intent on scaring people they have a passion for motorcycles and there motorcycle family they would do anything for.

I like my done up cars but and theres no rules for that so why motorcycles?

The bikers help out the community to by going to community events raising money and the kids love motorcycles I just think its unfair that the law treats everyone of these people as criminals. Why is it hurting anyone wearing colours? It represents them and there family and what they have built.
